Academy of Rock (AOR) is Singapore's award-winning pioneer Rock and Pop music school dedicated to teaching popular music. Opened in 2007, the founder noticed a surplus and bias towards classical music education and a lack of holistic, structured popular music education in the industry. AOR has since made its mark in the industry and continues to improve its services and curriculum while initiating new ideas and approaches to teaching popular music. The school's motto, "Never Too Early, Never Too Late", encapsulates their belief in learning being a lifelong journey. Their vision is of a diverse musical landscape, where everyone from any background can come together to celebrate difference and experience music as a universal force to be reckoned with. Offering individual and duo classes for guitars, bass, drums, vocals, keys and more, the school has their own in-house syllabus and have developed their own exams known as the AOR Exams. They also provide an abundance of performance and internship opportunities for students as well as yearly non-profit activities. No one is a stranger at AOR: Their student demographic covers a diverse range of people - from toddlers to the elderly and even those with Special Educational Needs (SEN). Catering to every age group and level of musical experience, they match each musician who walks through our door with a member of their team of well-trained instructors to cultivate their students unique talents and help them grow to their fullest potential. Whether you are a trained professional seeking to refine your craft or a hobbyist looking for a new creative outlet, AOR wants you to feel at home with them. With a passionate yet realistically driven team, AOR hopes to establish itself as a global institution to give a platform for both students and staff to excel in music in and beyond the classroom - be it even as a music educator or entertainer.

Professor Charles Binam Bikoi, Senior Research Officer, Professor in many Universities specialized in Ancient civilizations and oral traditions of which he is a pioneer in the areas of teaching and research in Africa. Eclectic scientist, he is the author of many publications dedicated to African traditional literature which he simply considers literature, and to which he has contributed to re-establish in its nobility. At the beginning of his career as researcher, Charles Binam Bikoi's academic choices made him one of the youngest researchers to influence the academic and pedagogic orientations of Cameroon especially with the publication (with Professor Emmanuel Soundjock) of Tales of Cameroon (Les Contes du Cameroun) which will become the first collection of traditional literature included in the national secondary education curriculum. As the National coordinator of the project FAO/World Bank for the restructuring of the National System of agronomic research in Cameroon, he led the realization of a long term plan, then a mid-term plan of development of this sector and for this matter he conducted studies that led to the creation of the Institute of agricultural research for development called IRAD as well as the creation of a national research program on oil palm (PNRPH), a national research program on rubber tree (PNRH) and the implementation of the Regional Centre of research on banana trees and plantains (CARBAP). The skills acquired in the strategic planning earned him to be designated as the General Secretary of the Conference of Ministers of Research and Development of Western and Central Africa (COMRED/AOC in French) and to be chosen in 1999 as speaker at the world conference of UNESCO on Science in the 21st century (Budapest).

His research continued with the publication of several articles, a dozen prefaces or postscripts, and a dozen of books on topics, questions and key stakes of oral traditions and African civilization especially on religion, trips, myths, maturity, creation and aesthetics in traditional literature, rites of passage and conviviality, pedagogy and discovery, languages and linguistic policies. His efforts in writing down traditional great works of forest peoples of the South of Cameroon especially Bassa, Koozimé and Fang-Beti led to the publication in 2008 of one of the most monumental epic works of Africa and of the world: Mpomo, the prince of the great river: A Nzimé Epic of Cameroon. The heroic story of an empire founder, the Mpomo's epic it is a book with a symbolic, political and philosophical scope because it highlights an ethos and an imaginary that reject the old and dominant thesis that considered the Bantu as acephalous societies. Since 2006, Charles Binam Bikoi has served as the Executive Secretary of CERDOTOLA. His leadership and the important structural reforms he has undertaken have enabled the institution to pass in 2010 from the status of a sub-regional African institution to an International Organization dedicated to African heritage whose scientific program now aims for the operationalization of the research with a strengthened pan-African significance illustrated by the adhesion of new member states and a dynamic opening to Diasporas. This transformation makes CERDOTOLA a preeminent organization of preservation, promotion and valorization of African traditions and languages as development tools. In order to bring optimal support to economic emergence policies adopted by African States and the African Union Agenda 2063, the Executive Secretary of CERDOTOLA is leading a diplomatic initiative for all African States to conclude an African Pact of Development for Emergence through Traditions (PADETRA).

Dr Charlene Muscat is a lawyer by profession who was elected in the 2013 Local Council Elections and who has served as the village's Mayor since February 2015. Dr Muscat is the first female mayor of the village and the youngest elected candidate in Mqabba. Her main achievements as the Municipality's head include, and are not limited to, the following:

Liaised with the Central Government and managed to secure an investment of over €2,000,000 to implement a project to conserve rainwater while addressing the flooding problem. Besides the installation of culverts along the streets surrounding the main square, the project includes the resurfacing of major roads and the embellishment of the village's main square. It also features the digging of a second reservoir in the village, for which the Council had obtained the necessary permit from the Planning Authority under Dr Muscat's leadership.

Assisted the youths in setting up a Youth Local Council. The two Youth Local Councils formed under her leadership obtained funds to implement a project in the village. The first Youth Local Council organized a Christmas Market, whereas the second Youth Local Council implemented an Outdoor Gym in collaboration with the Mqabba Local Council, which was inaugurated by the Mayor herself.

Initiated discussions to roof the existing reservoir and use the overlying space to host a home for the elderly. An outline development permit was issued, however due to a pending appeal, works have not progressed yet. Obtained EU funding to implement an urban greenery project. This will feature the planting of indigenous trees along the village's main street, and the installation of an adequate irrigation system.

Commissioned an artistic project, whereby a local artist worked together with German artists to embellish one of the village's open spaces. The project, called the Mqabba Wall, is built around the idea of a contemporary Megalithic temple. It will feature blocks of locally cut globigerina limestone (obtained from one of the village's quarries), and each block will be sculpted by a different artist yearly. The first block by the German artists Volker and Jenny Hauswirth has been sculpted so far, and the local artist Antoine Farrugia started working on his masterpiece. This project also received the VI8 Foundation's endorsement, and was an integral part of the European Capital of Culture's (Valletta2018) cultural programme.

Since 2012 we regularly invite super specialist surgeons from India in various disciplines and they do major operations right here at Sanitas, making overseas travel unnecessary for procedures like knee and hip replacement; head & neck surgeries; TURP and various complex reconstructive surgeries for burn cases and a lot, lot more . . . Tanzanians from all over the nation come to Sanitas for various surgeries. We have done over 7,500 surgeries – major and minor - in the past four years without a single incident – a perfect record that may be a first and only one in the country. At the fifth annual African Health Summit held in London in March 2018, Sanitas was awarded a plaque for being the hospital offering the “Best Healthcare Pathway in Africa”. The Ministry of Health has ranked us as a “Four Star” Hospital – one among the very few to have received four stars. No hospital received five stars. In 2018 KPMG & Mwananchi Communications included Sanitas Hospital among the top 100 medium sized businesses in Tanzania. We ranked 42. This year we plan to establish an ICU and four more theatres capable of doing open heart bypass surgeries; organ transplants; neuro and spinal surgeries and major oncology procedures and provide Tanzanians with an avenue right here for all their healthcare needs. 30 beds will become 50 to 60 beds. In 2015 a patient with filarial lymphedema walked in when our reconstructive surgeon, Dr Subramania Iyer was visiting. He agreed to offer exceptionally concessional treatment and surgery in his hospital in India which set the ball rolling for our charitable arm – “Sanitas Medical Foundation” - through which we have become the only hospital in Tanzania offering lymphatic manual drainage to people affected by this ailment, followed by a reduction surgery and eventually a nodo-venous shunt surgery free to those who cannot afford to pay. We also train men and women in other hospitals all over the nation on MLD so that they may offer this service in their region.

They proceed the entire supply chain of their customers by relying with their own resources (logistics team, warehouse, IS) and some preferred partners for transportation. Regional transport networks will improve due to a number of regional and national-level transportation infrastructure development projects. Long-term business growth prospects include multi-modal transportation, cold chain logistics, intelligent transportation systems, warehousing and freight forwarding. Growth in e-Commerce will transform e-Logistics delivery models, and the online freight services market will gain traction. The adoption of digital technologies will accelerate growth in the warehousing segment during our forecast period. Also Business growth and economic development has been hampered due to the lack of international-standard warehousing, though the financing could achieve better operational efficiencies through the reduction of wasteful storage, making product delivery faster and improving security. Already some leading European, Middle Eastern developers have targeted the sector.
